Christ University initiated the project “Suraksha Chakra (Wings of Protection)” in December 2021 to help 100% of the residents of Chakkittapara Gram Panchayat – a remote village in Kerala – to understand the benefits of, and obtain, healthcare insurance, using the “Last mile journey (creating 100% awareness), last mile delivery (100% coverage)” approach.

There are three goals designed for this project with “socio-economic sustainability” at its centre while transforming university education. The first goal is to provide clarity through immersive learning experiences in specific contextual environments. The second goal is to incorporate a professional mindset among diverse stakeholders to achieve developmental aspirations. And, lastly, to create an empathetic learning experience for students from universities in urban centres through rural-focused interventions.

The university collaborated with the local Chakkittapara Cooperative Society to build trust among villagers and bridge
